

Hurricane Helene Recovery

I first want to thank everyone who has reached out to check on Lynn and me. We are safe and fortunate to live in an amazing and resilient community.

The damage to Lake James and the surrounding areas has been catastrophic, but fortunately our home was not hit by any fallen trees other than a few that fell on our driveway. Our dock and boat are floating but secure.

The region is without power, internet, cell coverage and limited water supply. This is why it's been difficult to communicate over the past few days and not likely to have these services up and running anytime soon.

We currently are at a community center about 30 miles east of the lake that does have power and internet services and where we will be working for the foreseeable future.

It might be a challenge to get out a full capital market commentary for at least this week, but I am up and running workwise to make any changes if market conditions warrant.

Thanks, and hope to be fully operational soon.
