

September Newsletter

AI can help predict peak fall foliage. Machine-learning models can use data like temperature, daylight, and precipitation to forecast when autumn colors will appear and peak across regions.

Here in Texas, the heat wave has certainly given us plenty to talk about—and the financial markets have been a little quieter by comparison. With the new Fed Chair holding interest rates steady, there is still plenty of uncertainty about the direction rates may take over the next several months.

When there isn't much headline news, it can be easy to “fall asleep at the wheel” when it comes to your financial accounts. However, with the midterm elections approaching, we could see an increase in both news flow and market volatility.

As always, if you have questions or would like to review your accounts to make sure you're still on track, please don't hesitate to reach out to our team.
